

SYNOPSIS

Getting to Heaven on a Harley

Awaken to the Truth of Who You Are and
Imagine Your Own Life Review

A Radical Karma Workbook
By Colin Tipping

This is not your normal kind of workbook. It has assignments but it is unusual in that it first asks you to imagine that you are dead. I should explain.

[Listen to Colin read the Introduction to the Book]

It starts out with a story, the first line of which is, "And then I died." The hero of the story is a guy called Steve Parker who crashes his Harley Davidson motor-cycle into a tree and does not survive the experience. He slowly realizes that he is dead and watches himself being put on a stretcher, covered over with a sheet, and carted off to the morgue. We feel his confusion about whether or not he is really dead and his intense grief about being separated from his body.

He then meets another discarnate spirit, Joe. He too died on the same bend but has been stuck there unable to escape from his family's attachment represented by the memorial they have erected on the side of the road. It holds him there.

Steve feels drawn to go to the light almost immediately, but Joe resists, fearing punishment from the judgmental God he was taught to believe in. But Steve manages to persuade him, but only after they get a couple of drinks, assuming they can find a spirit willing to serve them some spirits.

[Listen to Colin reading an excerpt from this part of the story.]

Steve agrees, so they find a couple of guys in a bar and jump inside their bodies in order to get an alcohol fix, only to find a whole community of spirits already in residence in both of them. They do manage to get a drink but they are glad to be out of that fix. Then they go to visit Steve's wife and he enters her dream cycle to let her know that he loves her and he's OK.

Once Steve persuades Joe that it is time to go, they instantly find themselves speeding up the tunnel of light on a Harley Davidson motorcycle. Steve is in control, Joe riding pillion holding on for dear death. At the end of the tunnel is that which we can only describe as a Presence bathed in soft but almost blinding white light and emanating unconditional love. Once home, Steve is met by Harley, his Angel of Incarnation - the one who prepared him for his soul's journey.

(Yes, you've guessed, it. This Angel was a biker when he was on the earth plane and still had an abiding passion for Harley Davidson motorcycles. He is also the same angel who prepared Jack for his journey to become President of the United States in my other book, A Radical Incarnation.)

Harley takes Steve into a room where he meets all the souls that supported him at every moment in his life, as well as all those with whom he'd had pre-arranged soul contracts, including his ex-wife who had been the love of his life but had died of cancer soon after their marriage. That too was a prearranged part of the Divine Plan. Their exchange is very touching as you might imagine.

Harley then takes him carefully through his life review, going over each of his pre-arranged challenges as well as those not pre-arranged, all of which, though, enabled him to meet his goal of accumulating 7,500 karmic units in his lifetime.

(A Karmic Unit is the unit of measurement for the pain of separation - separation being what we all come in to experience as our way of growing spiritually into the full awareness of Oneness. We decide before coming in how much separation pain we are willing to endure, in that one lifetime, before waking up. That translates into X number of Karmic Units. Typically we begin to awaken at about the halfway point in our lives.)

What the Readers Will Get From This Story

Witnessing Steve's life review reveals the truth of our spiritual reality — about death itself and what happens afterwards; about how life really works at the spiritual level and so on. The readers will get incredible insight about their own lives from it.

PART TWO — Constructing Their Own Life Review

To integrate this knowledge and understanding, the author invites them to imagine that they have died and that they are going through their own life review process, looking at everything that has happened to them through that same lens, witnessing the truth of it for themselves.

They will get to see who they contracted with to do some terrible things to them. They will understand who their parents really were, and how they chose them and why. They may see what residual generational and past life pain they came in with, how much separation pain they agreed to have before they began to awaken, etc.

PART THREE — Becoming Awake Assignments

Part Three assumes, of course, that they have met their goals for the number of Karmic Units aimed for, and can therefore be allowed to awaken to the truth and offers them some 'Becoming Awake' Assignments. The idea here is that in order to stay awake there are things they need to do including some Radical Forgiveness on all the stuff they created while accumulating their Karmic Units. They are also be invited to discover their purpose, or refine the ones they have, in the light of their new awareness of who they are and why they are here.

PART FOUR — The Tools of Radical Incarnation.

Part Four is an explanation of Radical Forgiveness and the tools, including the new Radical Forgiveness worksheet.

POSTSCRIPT: What happens to Joe? Well, he does good too and gets a new assignment to become a terrorist in the Middle East, so he didn't expect it to be a long incarnation. He's more than happy with that.

As for Steve's new assignment, we will let you find out by reading the book. It will more than likely blow your mind and may even inspire you to think about being on his team.
